

Inclusive Positive Action

17th & 18th November 2005

Alternative Future,
The Globe Centre, Accrington
9.30 am – 4.00 pm

This two day programme has been designed to promote an increased understanding and knowledge towards inclusive and integrated approaches to make services work for all communities.

This programme will explore these themes in the context of personal experiences and development to bring about positive changes in organisations.

Course Aim

The course aims to provide guidance and practical information, on developing quality responses to the needs of minority groups. It highlights relevant issues and suggests ways of ensuring good practice. Within this broader perspective, the two days will cover areas on; improving individual practices and responses to diverse needs on an individual basis.

We hope that the training will inspire and encourage those who work with people from minority groups to begin to listen to what they have to say, their stories and their struggles. We hope that this will persuade those who are involved in the planning and delivery of services that it is essential to prioritise this work, and working with people from all diverse communities can be exciting, interesting and creative and this brings huge benefits to the wider organisation. 'Let's not forget the forgotten minority, let us give a voice to the silent minorities'.

Course Objectives

The course is intended to enable participants to:

- Have increased knowledge and understanding of key issues concerning people from minority communities and
- Move away from stereotypes and over-generalisations and towards more person centred approaches.
- The course aims to raise questions and encourage discussion for improved learning.
