SHIELD - Sexual Health Innovative Education for Learning Disabilities

Training by Teresa Day Health Promotion Specialist, Sexual Health Education.

Aim of the Course

To improve awareness, skills and confidence in working more effectively in the area of sexuality and relationships with people with learning disabilities/special needs

Enabling the people on the course to become SHIELD Links to their workplace.

Objectives of SHIELD Programme:

- To provide information about the legislation that will promote a clear rationale for working with service users, parents, carers and other staff.
- To create an understanding of values and attitudes (your own and other peoples) to sexuality and how these can impact on your work
- To experience practical relevant communication skills to enhance sexual health and relationships work
- To recognise personal boundaries
- Promote awareness and understanding of the SHIELD Programme
- To improve competence in supporting people with learning disabilities to access appropriate information and services regarding their sexual health and relationships.
- Manager who agree for their staff to take part in the training should be aware that these staff will then be expected to be released to continue developing their skills as SHIELD Links.
